SMART has a BETA out for their new SMART Notebook SE (Student Edition)

scheduled for release 2009. This software uses all the benefits of SMART Notebook combined with binders, homepage etc for the student to easily see their homework.

Apparently the files can be set to due dates and the software will be available on a USB wrist strap that will auto launch without installation on any computer.

This will give the students possibilities to access the software from any computer in the school and at home - they can also save their homework directly on the USB stick.

The BETA with limited functionality is free to download - the full version will have some costs.
